

Running Commentary Following Gertrude's Death

Part 16 of 53

Franklin Merrell-Wolff

December 3, 1978

I gave the material that was available for public use in the present tape and we had an half-hour discussion afterward which was unusual; there seemed to be interest aroused. But as to myself, I find that on Sunday I miss Gertrude most of all. Just why is not wholly clear, but it is true that we, together, prepared the room for the meeting and that the Sunday service was the crown of our work, also it was on Sunday, May 28th that she departed from us. This has occurred before, it seems to be true that I miss her most on this day and I feel at the present time vulnerable again. This is simply to continue the record. There seems to be something like an oscillation between a stronger condition and a weaker condition.
