

My dear One, I have tried to get you on the phone, and am not able to, I am afraid you are sick in bed, as I am.
Or and I am sending a little note to you and Mr. Watson, I think you will agree with me that it is the right thing to do, It had to be a little formal as we wanted death notes to be alike but I hope you know that there is no formality in our hearts for you. I want you to notice particularly what I said about seeing him alone We made a point of that, if she insists on accompanying him you can call it off your business is with him alone No third person should take part in this at this stage of proceedings, Plus is purely B & and no third person should interfere, Lovingly
B.S

Mrs.S.A.M.B.- #2.

I cannot think of anything of special interest to you, as I wrote you such a short time ago.

You know how glad I always am to hear from you, so I hope you will write as often as you can spare the time; but I don't want you to write letters to me when you are all tired out after a hard day's work.

Assuring you of my deep and tender love for you, I am ever, Devotedly yours, P. J.
